A Troubled World
Two Instructive Maps
Striking Against Edison
Wall St.'s Problem

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

TROUBLES ALL over the world. In Spain, students burn a picture of the king, and Berenguer, prime minister, closes the University of Barcelona.

People burning the picture, the students cut out the head, mounted it on a pole and paraded the streets with it.

That is a mild but unpleasantly close imitation of French revolutionary times. They cut off the head of a public official that advised peasants to eat grass if they had no bread. The mob stuffed the dead mouth with grass, put the head on the end of a pole, and paraded with it.

TWO MAPS, recently published, will be studied by future historians. One shows locations of all speakeasies in the national capital. Innumerable black specks, each indicating a bootleg resort, make the map look like the face of a child with chickenpox.

The other map shows South America, its revolutionary sections heavily shaded. A few small white spots show smaller states, Chile, Colombia, Venezuela, Ecuador, Paraguay and Uruguay, still peaceful.

THIS COUNTRY may congratulate itself on the fact that if it hasn't lost its nerve after a destructive stock gambling fever it would have little worry.

It has no revolutionary tendencies that cannot be taken care of by the police, and, more important, it has no "dole," such as in England, destroying desire to work in millions of men, putting idleness on a national subsidy basis.

A STRIKE in the Edison factory in Orange, N. J., was necessary, perhaps, if it be a fact that wages were reduced.

But any workman knowing what Edison has done for workers must find it hard to call a strike against him.

Thanks to Edison, millions are at work all over the world at good wages, and millions live in comfort unknown before Edison's work began.

However, he is 83 years old, a philosopher, and knows that the one thing not to be expected is gratitude.

IN BERLIN the Hitlerites, imitation fascisti called "Nazi," continue rioting and attacks on the shops and persons of Jews.

These "Nazi" represent the second most powerful party in the Reichstag, but this has not prevented the Berlin police from using their clubs on the rioters.

WALL STREET seems unable to make up its mind about moving up or down.

Yesterday, in the morning it moved down.

In the afternoon it was moved up.

There are stocks for sale that will go lower, because they are two parts hydrogen, one part oxygen.

Other stocks will go far above the highest prices at which they have ever sold, because they are worth the money.

And many are selling good stocks at ridiculously low prices in order to hold bad stocks.

BULKLEY HERE FOR CAMPAIGN TALK AT RALLY

Senatorial Candidate Makes Unexpected Visit to City with Party Leaders.

750 AT FIRST MEETING

White, Pickrel and Carl Smith Are Other Speakers on Program.

Reiterating his stand against the eighteenth amendment, Robert J Bulkley of Cleveland, candidate for U. S. senator, made an unexpected appearance last night at the Democratic rally held in the Star auditorium. Bulkley had been scheduled to speak in Toledo, according to announcements from state headquarters, but he rearranged his itinerary in order to come here with others in the state campaign caravan.

George White of Marietta, candidate for governor, William Pickrel of Dayton, candidate for lieutenant governor, and Carl W. Smith of Kenton, candidate for congress from the eighth district, were the other speakers at the rally, which marked the opening of the Democratic campaign in Marion county. More than 750 persons attended.

Advocates Repeal

Bulkley advocated the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the substitution of former state's rights. The amendment, he said, is the only part of the constitution that restricts personal liberty and as a result is out of harmony with the remainder of the constitution.

The alleged extravagance of the Cooper state administration was scored by White in his talk, the first on the program. He stamped the present administration as "the most costly and extravagant in the history of Ohio."

White declared Cooper had not dared to meet his challenge, made 10 days ago, to give the taxpayers of Ohio a comparative statement of income, expenditures and balances for 1928 and 1929, "because it would prove the present governor has spent $4,740,000 more for administration purposes than was expended in 1928, the last year under Donahey, a Democrat."

Hits at Schorr, Silver

His figures, White pointed out, were taken from the report of State Auditor Joseph Tracy, a Republican.

Edward Schorr, state director of commerce and Republican state central committee chairman, and Harry D. Silver, state finance director, are the real governors of Ohio, White declared. He pledged that if elected he would give his full attention as governor to state business and that he "would not delegate the duties of the office to politicans."

Pickrel predicted that White would carry almost unanimously his home county of Washington county, but that Cooper would lose in his own home county, Hamilton. The candidate for lieutenant governor spent part of his time lauding the ability of White and

ROB AGED OHIOAN AND HOUSEKEEPER

Masked Trio Invade Home, Bind and Drug Two Occupants.

By The Associated Press

MARIETTA, O., Oct. 15—Three masked men early today bound and drugged Henry Pryor, 90, retired farmer of near Harriettsville, and his housekeeper, Mrs. Margaret Schaffer, 65, and robbed them of several hundreds of dollars in currency and government bonds.

Pryor and Mrs. Schafer were attacked early today and were tied to a bed and a chair, respectively, and then drugged them. The robbers then leisurely searched through the house for money Pryor was reputed to keep hidden about the premises.

Noble county officials who were called said Pryor was unable to tell them the exact amount of the loot as he had secreted a number of bonds and a small sum of money in different places about the premises. Pryor and Mrs. Schaefer said they heard the trio drive away from the house in an automobile but did not see the machine.

TOWN PUT UNDER MILITARY CONTROL

Soldiers Recalled to Missouri Community as Mob Threatens.

By The Associated Press

STE. GENEVIEVE, Mo., Oct. 15—Ste. Genevieve was under military control today for the second time this week after troops had been recalled when new threats of mob violence became evident, resulting from the failure of a Negro mail carrier and his two brothers to heed a warning to leave town.

Practically all other Negroes left here after the slaying early Sunday of one white man and the fatal wounding of another by three Negroes, two men and a woman, in a robbery.

The troops, who had left for their homes only yesterday after danger of trouble appeared over, arrived today at 1:45 a. m. They surrounded the courthouse and mounted machine guns at vantage points. Sheriff Zeigler requested the troops after the arrest of nine men, part of a group of white men who visited the home of Louis Ribeau, Negro mail carrier, and ordered Ribeau to get out of town or suffer the consequences.

Renewed feeling against the Negroes flared up last night after the death of Paul Ritter, 38, second victim of the attack by the three Negroes Sunday. Harry Panchot, service car driver, who had been engaged by the Negroes, was instantly killed.

The Negro assailants of Panchot and Ritter were being held in jail at St. Louis, as a precautionary measure.

750 Attend Opening of Star's Cooking School

Session Breaks First Day Attendance Records; Auditorium Well Filled for Demonstration and Lecture by Mrs. Lautz; Nursery Entertains 67 Children.

BY EDNA S. DUTTON
Marion Star Staff Writer

The bride whose wedding gifts still retain that tell-tale air of newness and the one whose presents are fast approaching the heirloom stage sat side by side and with a busy pencil jotted down this idea and that suggestion which Mrs Emily M. Lautz tossed in for good measure in the first of her series of The Star's free cooking school lectures and demonstrations yesterday afternoon in The Star auditorium. Perhaps the older homemaker had heard some of the ideas before or possibly the idea was presented in a little different way, but there were ideas and plenty of them and they seemed to be just what these managers of homes wanted.

A total of 750 homemakers, the largest crowd to attend any opening session of The Star's cooking schools greeted Mrs. Lautz and her assistant, Mrs. Metcalf, at 2 p. m the time set for the opening of the lecture hour and from then on teacher and pupils enjoyed an afternoon in the "kitchen." Mrs. Lautz, who is a graduate of Fanny Farmer School of Cooking, presents her program clearly and concisely and explains in minute detail the day's recipes, and embellishes them with helpful and labor-saving suggestions and hints.

Homemaking is the biggest job in the world, Mrs. Lautz believes. She tells her audience: "The job requires the highest type of intelligence, for the housewife must be a cook, she must be a nurse, she must be a financier, she must be as beautiful as a movie actress and she must be able to entertain charmingly. It also is the most profitable job in all the world, for

ADVANCE REPORTED BY BRAZIL FEDERALS

Victories on Three Fronts Claimed for Government Forces.

By The Associated Press

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Oct. 15—Federal sources today claimed steady advance of their armies into revolutionary territory, with victories over insurgent forces reported on three fronts.

In two sections of the state of Minas Geraes, government forces had the rebel troops in retreat, while two columns operating on the 200-mile Sao Paulo-Parana front forced fighting back into Parana, away from the Sao Paulo border.

Insurgent quarters were silent regarding the federal claims, making only such general statements as that the advance of the "Gauchos," or Rio Grande Do Sul cowboys, continued. Rebel leaders continued to claim a victory at Carlopolis, in the Jacarezinho sector, but this federals disputed.

WILL GIVES ESTATE TO RELIGIOUS USES

Bishop Leonard Leaves Bequests for Church and Philanthropic Purposes.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 15—Bequests amounting to $230,000 in cash and more than $200,000 in real estate and other properties are left for philanthropic and religious uses from the estates of Bishop William A. Leonard of the Ohio Episcopal diocese and his wife.

The wills of Bishop Leonard and Mrs. Leonard, who died in 1916, were drawn almost in duplicate, providing equal bequests and stipulating that when one died the survivor should enjoy a life interest on the whole of the deceased's estate. With the filing of the bishop's will in probate court yesterday, the joint bequests become available.

The Ohio diocese, over which Bishop Leonard presided 42 years prior to his death, Sept. 21; Trinity cathedral, Cleveland, seat of the bishopric, and Kenyon college are the principal beneficiaries. More than a score of relatives and employes will share approximately $75,000.

Plea To See Mother Futile as Bullets End Career of Bandit

By United Press

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 15—"Little Jake" Fleagle, of the notorious family of western bandits, died in a Springfield hospital today at 9:55 a. m. of bullet wounds inflicted by authorities who captured him yesterday as he was boarding a train at Branson, Mo.

Fleagle died after doctors failed to arrest an abdominal hemorrhage.

The man who terrorized the west with bloody bank robberies and sensational holdups died calling for his mother.

"Tell her to hurry," he said. "I want to see her before I close my eyes."

His death prevented the state of Colorado from trying him for the murderous Lamar, Colo., bank raid of two years ago in which three men were killed.

HOOVER BOARD SENDS OUT QUIZ ON PROHIBITION

First Effort Ever Made by Government To Get National Opinion.

DISTRIBUTED TO EDITORS

Purpose Is To Get Views on 18th Amendment and Volstead Act.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 — The first effort ever made by the federal government to measure national opinion on prohibition was being undertaken today as President Hoover's crime commission, confronted with the task of rendering a prohibition report within 90 days, was called back for resumption of deliberations.

Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock, who had started an ambitious program of compiling "the facts about prohibition," distributed to the editors of 3,000 leading daily and weekly newspapers a questionnaire somewhat similar to the Literary Digest poll of private citizens.

Replies To Be Published

The response from the press, Woodcock said, would be compiled in pamphlet form. The law enforcement commission probably will be given an opportunity to study the results before making its report.

The questions asked of editors were:

1—Do you favor the 18th amendment and the Volstead act?

2—Are you opposed to the 18th amendment and the Volstead act?

3—Are you neutral on the subject of federal prohibition?

All members of the crime commission except Judge William S. Kenyon promised attendance at today's meeting, a continuation of the session begun last week after a summer recess. Newton D. Baker and perhaps one or two others may be unable, however, to remain here through the two or three days of discussion now contemplated.

At last week's meeting the hope was expressed that a prohibition report would be submitted to President Hoover early in December. Commissioners denied reports of dissension, regarding the subject but if Chairman Wickersham fails to present his report the fact is certain to be accepted as proof that the commission will be unable to handle prohibition except by means of majority and minority reports.

BELIEVE KIDNAPER TRAPPED BY POSSE

Searchers Reported on "Hot Trail" of Abductor of Missouri Heiress.

By The Associated Press

GREENFIELD, Mo., Oct. 15—A posse seeking the abductor of Mrs. Alma Wilson McKinley, 24, daughter of Benton Wilson, oil millionaire, reported shortly before noon today they had picked up a "hot trail" at El Dorado Springs, Mo., near the place where Mrs. McKinley was released late yesterday. They said they thought they and their pack of bloodhounds were closing in on the man.

Possemen found the spot in the woods where Mrs. McKinley was held and were directing the hunt from this point. The camping spot was identified by trampled grass where Mrs. McKinley had lain wrapped in the tarpaulin and by cigaret stubs left by the kidnaper.

Believed Not Gang Member

As the fantastic details of the abduction were reviewed today by authorities, doubt was expressed that the man really belonged to a gang. The view was expressed that no gang would entrust such an undertaking to him singlehanded and without a motor car. The fact that he consented to let his victim go, with no assurance but her promise that she would deliver the $10,000 ransom to him, strengthened the theory.

Authorities investigating the kidnaping of Mrs. McKinley, released late yesterday after being held captive for nearly a day, today expressed the opinion her abductor originally planned to capture and hold for ransom her millionaire father, Benton Wilson.

The opinion that Wilson was first intended as the victim was based on a note left at the Wilson home by the abductor, in which $60,000 was demanded for the release of Mrs. McKinley, an expectant mother. Investigators said the abductor's plans to collect ransom for the release of Mrs. McKinley were foiled when the Wilson motor car, in which she was forced to drive away, became mired in the mud near Jarico Springs, Mo.

Although unharmed, Mrs. McKinley was near exhaustion when the note left at the Wilson home warned relatives Mrs. McKinley would be "bumped off" if its contents were revealed to officials or newspapers.

"LEGS" BATTLES TO STAVE OFF DEATH

Four Held as Witnesses in Shooting of New York Gangster.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 — Jack "Legs" Diamond battled to stave off death today while police strove to pick up the four-day-old trail of the gunmen who shot him.

The gangster, who was shot five times in his hotel room Sunday, rallied early today after surgeons had issued a bulletin saying his condition had been complicated by a pulmonary collapse. At the time the bulletin was issued little hope was held for his recovery.

Four persons were held as material witnesses today, including John M. Ginsberg, manager of the Monticello hotel. The others were Miss Marion Strasmick, show girl companion of Diamond in the hotel; Joseph Goldie, assistant manager; Thomas Marshal, clerk, and John Hughes, bell boy.

Ginsberg said he was preparing to take his family to Edgewater Sunday when he heard "a lot of noise—it sounded like a lot of shots."

He said he opened the door of his suite and saw Diamond coming out of his room, holding his head and staggering.

The hotel man repeated his conversation with Diamond as follows:

"'What happened?' I asked him as I ran up to him. He said, 'I'm hurt. Please get our doctor right away.'"

Ginsberg said Diamond went to his suite and lay down.

Diamond asked for Harry Drescher, a friend, who lived in the hotel. Ginsberg said Drescher came in and asked Diamond who shot him.

"Don't ask me any questions," Ginsberg said Diamond replied. "Somebody gave it to me. I don't know who it was."

Ginsberg was held in $25,000 bail and bail for the others was fixed at $5,000. Drescher, who disappeared a short time after he talked with Diamond, is being hunted by police.

SOCIALIST CHOSEN

Loebe Reelected President of German Reichstag.

BERLIN, Oct. 15—Dr. Paul Loebe, Socialist, was reelected president of the Reichstag at today's session.

The reelection of the veteran statesman, who was first elected president of the Reichstag in 1920, was regarded as being of great political significance in showing that Centrist party was unwilling to swing completely to the right.

Had the Catholic parties, namely the Centrists and Bavarians, failed to support Loebe, all possibilities of rallying behind him would have failed.

By The Associated Press

ZANESVILLE, O., Oct. 15—Mrs. Agnes Hilton of Cincinnati, was nominated for president of the Ohio league of women voters at the organization's annual election of officers today. The convention ends tonight with addresses by Senator Roscoe C. McCulloch and Governor Myers Y. Cooper.

TOTAL FALLS 2,000 SHORT OF 1928 MARK

Turnout, However, Considered Good by Election Board Officials Here.

MANY ARE DISFRANCHISED

Those Now Unregistered Cannot Vote in General Election on Nov. 4.

Registration in Marion city is approximately 85 per cent of the total number eligible to register, board of elections officials estimated today following the close of the two-day extension period granted voters who failed to register on the regular three days.

Total number registered is 11,875 as compared to 13,838 registered in 1928, according to C. G. Ritzler, deputy clerk of the election board. The figure is unofficial on the recent registration.

Say Turnout Good

Although the 11,875 figure is higher than expected, it is lower than that of two years ago when the Hoover-Smith presidential battle, which brought out a record-breaking vote throughout the country, was in progress, Ritzler pointed out. The board, however, is highly pleased with the turnout this year, he said.

Last night election board attaches were kept busy when a long line of voters put in an appearance at the board's offices to register before the time limit was reached, and at 9 p m the board was forced to turn away a number of voters who put in a belated appearance.

A total of 275 voters were registered yesterday and 136 were registered Monday, as the result of efforts of party workers who made canvasses of various precincts in order to bring up the registration to as high a point as possible.

Many Disfranchised

Voters who now are unregistered cannot vote on Nov. 4, according to Ritzler, although they may register after the election in order to be eligible for future elections. Registration after the election, however, cannot begin until a 10-day period has been passed in which the board can clean up post-election duties.

The board now has six women working on the 11,875 registrations in an effort to alphabetize city voters and to classify them in their proper precincts. When the task is completed, each precinct will be given a list of its qualified voters for use in the Nov. 4 election.

In The Open

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 15—No wonder Dwight Morrow stands today so much higher in the public estimation than all our old line politicians.

You might be against his opinions but you admire his direct way of coming out on everything he talks on. Any other man that had his chance for the presidential nomination would wait and hedge around and not come out either way, and in that way embarrass the present president.

But not Morrow. He just said yesterday that he was for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but not for repeal of Mr. Hoover.

Hoover will be renominated and elected and if we should happen to have some good times along in '32 (over which he has no control) why he will win further than he did last time. Cause the Democrats haven't got but one Smith.

Yours,

Will Rogers

WORKMAN INJURED IN COAL YARD HERE

Heavy Lump Falls from Car, Striking Man on Head; To Take X-Ray.

A lump of coal weighing about 100 pounds, fell on Paul Mayfield's head yesterday afternoon while he was working for the Italston Coal Co. of 676 Bellefontaine avenue, injuring the back, his neck, and bruising his head.

Members of his family said this morning that the attending physician would probably take an X-ray of his injuries this afternoon.

Mayfield, who lives at 571 Blake street was unloading coal from a car, using a conveyor. The car was overloaded and several of the lumps fell off, one of them striking him. He was standing erect and the weight of the lump, which fell approximately six feet, jerked his head forward, injuring the cords in the back of his neck, and knocking him unconscious. The accident occurred at 5 p. m.

He was taken into the offices of the coal company and a physician called. At 10 p. m. he was taken to his home in the W. C. Boyd invalid car. Mayfield is married and has two children.

pointed out his record in congress and as a business man. He mentioned that White was a student under the late President Woodrow Wilson when the latter was a professor at Princeton university.

Smith scored the action of congress in appropriating a huge sum for a reclamation project in the west while farms in the middle west, he said, have been selling at forced sale for less than the cost of the improvements on the land. He declared he "could not understand that kind of farm relief."

The Grundy tariff was assailed by the congressional candidate, who declared that the tariff has done American business, agriculture, labor and industry immeasurable harm by arousing a storm of retaliation against American products throughout the world.

Charges "Whispering Campaign"

Charges of a "whispering campaign" aimed to alienate support from his candidacy were made by Bulkley in his address. He alleged the whispering is in regard to his legal relations with an Ohio coal mining company, the Warner Collieries, which has had labor disputes.

Bulkley admitted that the Cleveland law firm of which he is a member has been employed as counsel by the coal company but that it never has been involved in the company's differences with labor.

"The Republican textwriters and orators of 1930 are hard pressed for campaign subject matter," Bulkley declared in defense of the charges. "From the beginning of the campaign they realized that this is not a good year to talk Republican prosperity, so they have taken up other subjects."

Chairman C. J. Altmaier of the county Democratic executive committee introduced the candidates, as well as a number of other county candidates. The latter list included Ed Lauer, candidate for state representative; Elmer Parish, candidate for auditor; Russell Wilhelm, candidate for prosecuting attorney; Charles Fye, candidate for sheriff; Clarence O. Hart, candidate for recorder; Ray G. Smallwood, candidate for treasurer, and Dr. Kenneth Smith, candidate for coroner.

Ray Allison, candidate for attorney general, John Henry Newman, candidate for secretary of state, William Klinger, candidate for the court of appeals, and Ralph Sugrue, one of the two candidates for state senator from the combined thirteenth and thirty-first districts, also were present and were introduced.

Mrs. Dell Howell of Zanesville, a member of the Democratic caravan, urged women to vote on Nov. 4. She declared that a woman's place not only is in the home but also at the polls.

The Future Farmers of America band of 45 pieces furnished music during the program and also gave a concert in front of the Marion hotel before the rally in honor of the visiting candidates who at the time were guests of 150 county Democrats at a dinner there.

PLANS HALLOWE'EN PARTY

A Hallowe'en party Oct. 24 was decided upon by the Epworth League of the Prospect Street M. E. church at a meeting last night in the church parlors. The place will be decided by the fourth vice president and a committee. Mr. and Mrs. John Reidenbaugh and Miss Minnie Wanner were hostesses for the meeting. Twenty members were present for the business meeting and social hour.

Don't make a Radio

A good radio is a necessity in every home. It broadens the mind—improves the faculties—provides a soothing influence for ruffled tempers and instills harmony in the lives of every member of the family. Good radios can now be had to suit the purse of anyone, and the easy terms of payment now offered by the best dealers make it easy for everyone to enjoy this modern influence for home betterment.

Mrs. Housewife works hard every day—harder perhaps than many husbands realize. With children going to school; meals to prepare; housework to do; laundry work; purchasing of home supplies; and a dozen and one other things that take up the hours and drain the vitality—there is need of a soothing influence like music to help rebuild her vitality. Much of the crossness; the unkind words spoken without thought; the deadly monotony; could be removed from life if there was the soothing influence of good music.

Radio programs as arranged these days, are suited to the mood of all. There is relaxation for mother during the day; there is sport and entertainment for father after a hard day's work in office or factory; entertainment, sports and culture for the the children.

Every single member of the family benefits by the use of a good radio in the home. It keeps one abreast of the times. Political questions are debated on both sides. Sports are broadcast right from the field of play, enabling the owner of a good radio to obtain almost as much enjoyment as though right on the field himself.

If good music is food for the soul—think of the millions who now have a broader and keener appreciation of good music—thanks to the radio of modern times. There is hardly a child of school age who cannot tell the name of scores of classical pieces—something unheard of in the days before good radio. Even children studying music are benefited by hearing good music over a good radio. The tone values, rhythm, melody are all firmly implanted in the eager mind of the listener and readily absorbed in the home.

Parents who are confronted with the problem of keeping the children off the street would have no problem if there was a good radio in the home. If the child is furnished with suitable entertainment in the home, the street will lose its appeal. Any good radio will provide suitable entertainment for the children, any hour of the day or evening. Let your youngsters enjoy a good radio in your own home. You owe it to them.

New C. & O. Locomotives Weigh Nearly 500 Tons

...ery of the first 20 of an or... 48 giant locomotives cap... hauling freight trains of ... more cars has been com... by the Lima Locomotive Works to the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. for use on the division between Russel, Ky., and Walberg, O. The 48 locomotives represent an expenditure of $42,000,000 by the Van Sweringen lines.

These powerful engines were purchased to augment those already in use for the hauling of coal and ore to and from the lake ports to the southern part of this state and into Kentucky. The vast improvement of Presque Isle coal and iron ore loading facilities made the purchase of additional locomotives necessary to care for the increased volume of freight which the company expects to handle in the future.

These engines are the last word in modern locomotive construction. There are five drivers on either side, each 69 inches in diameter. The tractive force of the main engine is 91,584 pounds. The locomotive will operate at a boiler pressure of 260 pounds.

The booster engine mounted on the tender will increase the tractive power of the engine to 106,584.

The engines are 111 feet and 11¾ inches long over couplers and weigh 981,000 pounds. They have a fuel capacity of 30 tons and a water capacity of 23,500 gallons.

The remaining 26 of these engines will be delivered in steady succession until the order is completed

BEAUTIFUL and CHARMING! It's an added special quality that makes the beauty of a pretty girl. But she's a natural favorite to begin with. And for the same reason Camels are favorites with the modern crowd. Scientific principles govern their manufacture; but the mildness, the fragrance, the delicate flavor are natural qualities of the tobacco.

There's enjoyment in the smoking of a Camel. Camels go with happy faces . . . a lift of spirits with the opening of every fresh, fragrant pack. For Camel's delightful mildness holds all the natural goodness of choicest tobaccos. Don't confuse it with the flatness or insipidness of "over-treated" cigarettes.

THREE BROTHERS, MAGNATES IN OIL INDUSTRY, SETTLE 15-YEAR QUARREL

By The Associated Press

TULSA, Okla.—A quarrel of 15 years ago has been patched up, and three brothers whose names are eminent in the oil industry are reunited.

L. E. PHILLIPS

Consolidation of the Phillips Petroleum company and the Independent Oil & Gas company, forming one of the world's largest independent oil organizations with assets in excess of $316,000,000, brought the Phillips triumvirate—Frank, L. E. and Waite—together again.

Back in 1915 when the three brothers were associated in the Phillips Petroleum company at Bartlesville, Okla., there was a disagreement one day.

Lease Starts Quarrel

Waite, the youngest brother who directed the land department, failed to get a lease which the other two thought should have been obtained.

The quarrel led to the withdrawal of Waite from the company.

The youngest brother tried his hand at lease brokering and running a chain of filling stations for a time. Then came a stroke of good fortune and he started a spectacular climb to the heights of the oil business—alone. The start was his opening of a new oil field in Okmulgee county, Oklahoma at about the time the United States entered the World war.

WAITE PHILLIPS

The field made Waite a fortune almost overnight. He sold out to the Barnsdall Corporation for $23,000,000 cash. In 1919 he became head of the Independent Oil and Gas company of Tulsa after merging with it the Philmack company, organized by him.

Forges to Front

Meanwhile, the original Phillips Petroleum company, with Frank as president and L. E. as executive vice president, had forged ahead and become a leading company of its kind.

FRANK PHILLIPS

One of its achievements was to develop into the world's largest manufacturer of natural gasoline. Shortly before the consolidation, the company began construction of a $15,000,000 gasoline pipeline — something new in pipeline transportation—from its Borger, Tex., refinery to Kansas City and St. Louis.

Before entering the oil business, the three brothers were engaged in banking at Bartlesville, Okla. They had come to Oklahoma from Iowa. Banking still remains the "hobby" of L. E. Phillips, and the other two brothers retain wide banking interests.

"Balanced"

The Pillsbury "balancing" process mixes as many as sixteen different types of the finest wheats. The result is a flour which contains just the right amounts of protein, mineral, moisture, etc. — a flour perfectly "balanced" for all kinds of baking.

"Unbalanced"

All these different substances are found in wheat when it is harvested. But they're not properly "balanced" for baking. No single variety of wheat contains these things in just the right quantities to make the finest all-purpose flour.

You know what happens when by accident you use a little too much baking powder. Or not quite enough shortening—or yeast that is too weak. The success of a recipe depends on perfect balance between all ingredients.

The same is true of flour. Flour is made of wheat, and wheat is made up of many things—protein, mineral, moisture, etc. But no single variety of wheat contains these things in just the right quantities for all baking. Some types of wheat have too much of one thing—others have too little of something else. Pillsbury blends different types of the finest wheat according to a scientific combination used only by Pillsbury. The result is Pillsbury's Best Flour — perfectly "balanced" for all your baking.

Try Pillsbury's Best—you'll see that it is different from other flour. Everything you bake — bread, biscuits, or pastry—turns out better. Everything has a delicate, unmistakably richer flavor. You'll discover how good baking can become really perfect baking when you use this scientifically "balanced" flour. It's worth while to get it. All good grocers have Pillsbury's Best —ask for it by name.

SIFRITT TAKES POST WITH FAIR BOARD

To Be Secretary and Custodian of Grounds for Association.

Carl W. Sifritt of 125 Superior street, secretary of the Marion county fair for the last two years, will take a position combining the duties of fair secretary and custodian of the fairgrounds beginning Nov. 15, he announced today.

In order to devote his full time to the new work, Sifritt has resigned as manager of the Green Camp Elevator Co. His resignation is effective as of Nov. 15.

Whether any decided changes will be made in the complexion of the fairgrounds before the 1931 fair would not be revealed by Sifritt. In his new position, he will have charge of all repair work of the grounds and will be given full charge of the upkeep and management of the grounds and buildings.

In combining this work with the secretaryship, the board has released C. W. McDonald who has occupied a residence on the fairgrounds and who was caretaker of the grounds. This house will be rented by the board when Sifritt takes charge.

FIND SHERIFF'S CAR ABANDONED ON ROAD

Thieves Escape Capture as Waldo Township Farmers Open Fire.

Thieves who stole the Chevrolet coach of Sheriff Charles Miller of Morrow county from in front of the county jail in Mt. Gilead Monday night escaped capture last night when the car was recovered on the St. James road in Waldo township.

Clerk of Courts Everett B. Grigsby assisted in the recovery of the car when he and two farm hands found the machine parked on the road near the Grigsby farm. When they went to investigate the presence of the mysterious car, they found two men standing near the machine.

The men, when asked to halt by David Schlecht, who was with Grigsby, turned and fled into the woods and Schlecht fired at them with a shotgun.

Grigsby, Schlecht and the latter's father John Schlecht, called Sheriff John J. Francis and Deputy Fred Williams and searched the vicinity but could find no traces of the men.

A member of Sheriff Miller's force last night claimed the car, which had been driven only a few miles since it was taken Monday night.

A .45 calibre revolver and a box of shells were missing from the machine, although a pair of handcuffs and other articles which had been in the machine when it was taken were left untouched.

GETS BRIDGE BID

Columbus Man Low Bidder for Road Work in Prospect.

Bernard Savage of Columbus was low bidder for the contract to erect a new bridge on route 203 in Prospect when bids were opened by the state highway department in Columbus yesterday.

Savage's bid was $8,976 as compared to the original estimate of approximately $11,000. The bridge is to be built on what is known as the Delaware-Prospect road in the village of Prospect and is to be completed by Dec. 31.

Contract for the work, as well as contracts for $500,000 of other state road projects on which bids were received, will be let in the near future.

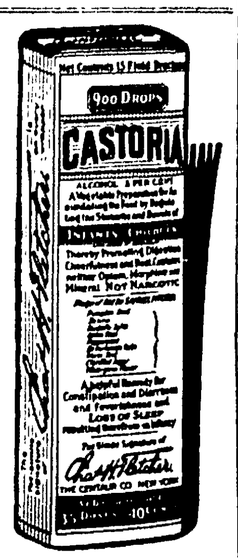
Can't PLAY
Can't REST
—child needs Castoria



WHEN a child is fretful and irritable, seems distressed and uncomfortable, can't play, can't sleep, it is a pretty sure sign that something is wrong. Right here is where Castoria fits into a child's scheme—the very purpose for which it was formulated years ago! A few drops and the condition which caused the trouble is righted; comfort quickly brings restful sleep.

Nothing can take the place of Castoria for children; it's perfectly harmless, yet always effective. For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an every-day aid. Its gentle action will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. In more liberal doses it will effectively help to regulate sluggish bowels in an older child.

All druggists have Castoria; it's genuine if you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature and this name-plate:

Daily Proverb—"You may keep yourself safe from fire, but not from a bad man."

A New Jersey jurist says that the alimony game is becoming a great racket. Why the use of "is becoming" after all these years?

As the days pass, the estimate of Mr. Hitler dwindles, and the recent Fascist rioting in Berlin in no way retarded his descent in world esteem.

Twenty persons die in five days in Newark, New Jersey, as the result of drinking poisoned liquor. The "experiment noble in character" is certainly exacting an awful death toll.

The welfare council of New York City reports that, in the last seventeen years, the amount expended by municipal agencies for outdoor relief—assistance to persons in their homes as distinguished from care given in institutions—has increased from $229,000 to about $8,000,0000, a gain of 2,500 per cent. There is nothing which increases much more rapidly or clings much more tenaciously than dependence on philanthropy.

All over France rivers are over their banks and there is the menace of the worst floods in twenty years. Old Mother Nature certainly fell down in her distribution of moisture this year.

Press reports from the American Federation of Labor convention in Boston show that organized labor no longer is solid in its opposition to state police; that there is growing recognition of the need for highway policemen. As organized labor was the greatest obstacle in the way of the adoption by Ohio of a highway patrol system, there is a possibility that a highway force in this state may not be yet far away.

President Hoover has stated that the government has in every way possible encouraged the private manufacture and exporting of helium. Still, it would take an awful lot of nerve for a private concern to erect and operate a plant for helium production with the very limited market the world offers for it.

The Morrow Candidacy.

"I subtract nothing from what I said in this hall five months ago," declared Dwight W. Morrow in Newark, in opening his campaign as the Republican candidate in New Jersey for election to the United States senate alike for the unexpired term of Walter E. Edge, who resigned to become ambassador to France, and the full term of six years to follow it. "I am in favor of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the substitution therefor of an amendment which will restore to the states the power to determine their policy toward the liquor traffic and will give to the federal government full power to afford all possible cooperative assistance and protection to those states that desire prohibition against invasion from the states that do not. My own opinion is clear that there should be a further change in the constitution."

In this connection, the former ambassador said he was inclined to agree with the position taken by the Democratic party of New Jersey, that national prohibition was not an issue in the senatorial campaign in the state, but that he reiterated his position that the voters of New Jersey might have no misunderstanding as to his attitude on the liquor question.

It is not difficult to get Mr. Morrow's meaning. It probably is very true that prohibition is not an issue in the New Jersey senatorial campaign. But the Morrow candidacy, because of his position on prohibition, is a matter of high interest throughout the country, and his success in the November election, should success be his, may prove of vital effect on the future of prohibition. This may be said not only because of his pledge, in the event of his election, to do his utmost to accomplish the repeal of the prohibition amendment, but also because of his high standing as a man.

Let us put the thing plainly. There was a time, and it was not so long ago, when a man running on a wet platform was looked upon with reproach. As a matter of fact, the average candidate for high office, no matter what his honest convictions as to the worth of prohibition might be, was glad to sidestep a stand for the repeal of the amendment. But here in New Jersey is a man of the highest standing, a man of eminence in the world of finance, a man who attained high honors in the diplomatic service as the result of his splendid record in Mexico, a man strictly temperate in his private life, who is an out-and-out champion of the repeal of the amendment.

Really it is hard to measure the effect the candidacy of such a man has in affording aid and comfort to the opponents of the eighteenth amendment. How much greater then, would be the election of a candidate of the Morrow standing to the United States senate, pledged though he may be to support the enforcement of the amendment so long as it is the law, but also pledged to do his utmost to accomplish that law's repeal?

47,000,000 Gainfully Employed.

Some surprising facts were brought out by Dr. William M. Steuart, director of the censur, during the course of his address broadcasted over the air from Washington, a few days ago. Among them were the facts that we of America, from being predominately an agricultural people are coming to be predominately a manufacturing people and that more than one-fifth of those gainfully employed in the country are women and girls.

The census bureau, it may be well to explain, does not classify the 23,000,000 housewives of the country as gainfully employed, a failure which is subject to criticism, for of all women who work, it is hard to imagine any employed with greater resultant gain to the country than the home-makers of the land.

Placing the total population at 122,000,000, Dr. Steuart estimates that this population is mainly supported so far as bread-winning is concerned by about 47,000,000 persons working about three-quarters of the time, those employed, owing to vacations, sickness and part-time schedules, not working on the average over 275 days a year.

Fully one-third of the total of those engaged in gainful employment, the census director stated, follow manufacturing or mechanical pursuits, their number exceeding the 10,000,000, roughly estimated, engaged in agriculture. Of the 47,000,000 workers, 5,500,000 are over sixty-five and 3,000,000 of them are over seventy, 2,000,000 of the 2,500,000 over sixty-five and under seventy being actively engaged and competing with the younger and physically more vigorous workers. Of the 37,000,000 women between the ages of sixteen and sixty-four, the census bureau classifies 10,000,000 as gainfully employed, about half of them producing tangible goods and the other half being engaged in occupations of different kinds. Thus it may be noted that, of 37,000,000 women and girls between the ages stated, 33,000,000 are working, 23,000,000 as housewives and the remaining 10,000,000 in, as classified by the bureau, gainful employment.

May we not have in the gainful employment of these 10,000,000 women and girls an explanation of the marked change which has been worked in the economic conditions of the country as well as its home life? Without disputing the right of women to seek and hold employment for gain, does not the fact that 10,000,000 have such employment at least in part explain the number of men out of work under normal conditions? There has been a marked change in twenty years, but those whose memories go back two score years or more will recall that the lines in which women were then employed were few and far between, while now there is hardly any field of industry, of business, of science, of art or any profession which they have not entered. There has been a veritable revolution in the national life so far as the employment of women is concerned and concurrent with it has been a change in the domestic life of the nation. Whether the change has been for the good or the bad is not herein considered. Herein we speak only of the change which has been worked.

The American Railway association has announced that, as a result of several years of experimental work, apparatus suitable for maintaining practical, constant radio communication between caboose and locomotive has been perfected, and that radio may now be used in the big switching yards where cars are made up into trains. Looks good for fine reception days and nights, but what's liable to happen in times of heavy static?

William Wrigley, Jr., of Chicago, has donated the use of a two front building, placing the Salvation army in charge of it, which has been equipped to afford beds for 200 jobless men and will accommodate 2,000 with beds before the setting-in of cold weather. Here's a form of philanthropy which has its advantages over many. It can hardly be utilized in an exchange for gasoline.

Former Ambassador Gerard, who achieved front page space some weeks since by naming the "rulers of the country," is now urging a ban on short selling. On what particular political office can Mr. Gerard have his eye?

The Roman semi-official Fascist paper, Tribuna, absolves the United States and its policies from responsibility for the revolutions in South American republics, holding them due to "the inability of democratic and ultra-democratic institutions originated by Masonic mentalities to create anything lasting." It may be said for the Tribuna's editorial utterance that it at least has added the charm of variety to the explanations for the unrest down there.

Figuring on estimates from all parts of the world, the experts of the Italian government are agreed that the total wheat production of this year will exceed that of last by 200,000,000 bushels. This hasn't any earmarks of an indication of boosts in the price of wheat.

Dr. R. T. Compton, director of research of Governor Cooper's taxation committee, is authority for the statement that the per capita cost of state and local government has risen from $20.64 in 1916 to $83.03 last year, and that the total tax burden in Ohio has grown from $111,000,000 in 1916 to $401,000,000 in 1929, an increase of 221 per cent. Naturally, if the people of Ohio and its various political divisions are to adopt this, that and the other suggestion offered in the name of progress, they will have to pay for them.

The French ministry of marine has decided to abandon its cruiser program and go in for the construction of heavily armed and armored battleships to meet the "menace" of vessels of the German Admiral Scheer class. A few more naval disarmament conferences, and there will be some real up-to-date fighting ships afloat.

The Chicago Bar association's committee on candidates has reported that six of the ten municipal judges of the city seeking reelection are not qualified for the bench, one of the six unfavorably reported by the sixteen past presidents of the association making up the committee being Judge John H. Lyle, who has been a leader in the war against "public enemies" and criminals. It's a toss-up whether, in Chicago, such a report will be taken as a blow at the six or a boost.

STRANGE BEDFELLOWS IN NEW YORK CITY.

Editorial Opinion.

MR. LEGGE FACES FACTS.

Having taken as much punishment as any public man in the United States, in the way of unfavorable comment, Mr. Alexander Legge, chairman of the federal farm board, now goes even farther in his startling announcements. In a few years, he tell us, the United States will not export grains, for Russia can sell them so cheaply that we will be driven out of world markets, and our production limited to what we can consume domestically.

This is bad news, for farmers who have relied on grains as their staple crop, and for others who point to our grain exports of some $375,000,000 a year as a factor in our prosperity. It is quite possible that Mr. Legge is correct, that wheat and corn will cease to be export crops for the United States.

However, his prediction depends on the assumption that Russia can continue to produce a large wheat crop year after year without giving the peasant farmers there a resonable price for it, and on the further assumption that no serious bars against Russian wheat will be set up in important consuming countries. Both of these assumptions may prove to be wrong.

At any rate, the underlying principle involved is worth noting carefully. The United States has ceased to be a frontier country capable of producing staple goods at low prices for export, with the notable exception of cotton, and must rely in future on exports of highly-processed specialty goods. As a foundation for domestic economic life, agriculture remains the basis of the American system. As an integral part of our foreign trade, it is doomed to a gradual, or even a rapid, extinction.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

WHERE ARE THOSE WICKED BOOKS?

What has become of the allegedly-obscene books seized by the customs and loaned to Senator Smoot last spring, when he was leading purity's van for a "five and ten" censorship provision in the tariff bill? The customs have not seen them since.

According to Washington dispatches at the time, Senator Smoot passed the books around among his colleagues in the senate chamber, as ocular arguments in support of his campaign to keep the native mind pure from foreign contamination. Senator Borah was seen leaving the senate with one of them under his arm. The present whereabouts of the others is the latest mystery of Washington.

Where is Senator Caraway and his smelling committee? With the literary taste, as well as the intellectual morals of the senate under suspicion, why not put them on the scent of the missing volumes? "I know every book of mine by its smell," George Gissing once wrote. Some of the contraband volumes, if they are as malodorous as they have been represented, smell to high heaven. Senator Nye's proboscis might even be yanked out of state political campaigns and set to sniffling around senatorial bookshelves.

Otherwise, if these highly-temperatured books are not recovered, some one is going to rise and demand that hereafter contraband literature be poured down the sewers, where contraband liquor now goes. The senate, if it doesn't return the pornography it borrowed, will very likely never have another opportunity to sample literary fruit forbidden to the nation at large. —Detroit Free Press.

Its Greatest Defect.

Prohibition in 1842.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Charles Dickens, who was a good observer, set down in his "American Notes," the fact that such prohibition as this government was trying to enforce in 1842, when he visited America, was largely a dead letter.

This will be found in his reference to the unpleasant night Mrs. Dickens and he spent at Upper Sandusky when crossing the state from Cincinnati to Sandusky, where they were to take a lake boat to Buffalo. Their coach reached this place, then an Indian reservation, late at night, and the one hotel, a primitive structure, offered very poor accommodations. Mrs. Dickens managed to get tolerable accommodations on the first floor, but their traveling companion, a Boston man, had to climb to an attic room, where he soon found the bed he was to occupy was already inhabited and fled to the coach, which was standing in the hotel yard, and made ready to sleep in it, but the pigs in the yard kept him awake by grunting about and shaking the coach by rubbing against its wheels.

The night was cold and the coverings he could find in the coach too few to keep him warm, so by morning he was chilled through and much afraid he would contract a cold. Then Dickens adds his remark about prohibition. "Nor was it possible to warm him when he did come out with a glass of brandy, for in Indian villages, the legislature, with very good and wise intention, forbids the sale of spirits by tavern keepers. The precaution, however, is quite inefficacious, for the Indian never fails to procure liquor of a worse kind at a dearer price."

Spare Parts for Your Feet.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

We are living in the age of machinery, and in every home mechanical devices are in common use. Every hamlet can supply extra parts to replace damaged or broken ones for your machine.

Unless you are in an accident that takes you to a police station, or the hospital, an automobile collision does not amount to much. The repair shop will restore everything to working order.

Your feet are the main parts in the machinery for the locomotion of your precious body. They are essential to your happiness and welfare. There may be artificial substitutes, but in the real sense there are no spare parts for this mechanism of locomotion.

Except when they hurt and ruin the pleasure of living, how often do you think about your feet? You spend a hundred dollars a year to keep your finger nails manicured and your hands looking well, but what do you do for your feet?

Many a person has made a wreck of himself by permitting sore feet to spoil his health and happiness. Nerves are put on edge and health undermined by steady pain, no matter where it is located. Take care of your feet.

Parents should see to it that their children are properly supervised when they begin to walk. It is essential that proper foot gear may be provided from earliest life. It is a good thing for grown children, as well as for adults, to have their feet examined at least once each year.

These examinations should be made by orthopedists, podiatrists or trained chiropodists. They are as important as examination to safeguard the sight, the hearing and the organs of the body. This is the teaching of all those who believe that prevention is better than cure.

Surveys made by the staff of the foot clinics of New York and given publicity through the United States public health service, show that sixty per cent. of adolescent girls are more or less foot defective. It should be our aim to prevent troubles of this kind, and to correct them when they do exist. Then there will be fewer foot cripples. As a result, our citizens will carry themselves better. They will have normal posture, thus helping the race practically as well as to better its appearance.

I marvel more and more that people buy whatever is offered in the way of shoes. They select their furniture, table linen, and evening garments with the greatest of care. But when it comes to shoes they are sadly indifferent.

If you prize your comfort and efficiency you will not neglect your feet. You will take care of them and clothe them only in the best fitting of shoes. Good shoes, properly adjusted, are infinitely more important than the kinds of shirts, skirts, vests or coats. Unless your feet are properly shod your usefulness is materially lessened.

Prayer—"Yes, I believe: Lord Thou canst give my soul relief."

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Oct. 15—It was freely predicted when the Kellogg treaty, an unusual gesture for peace, was consummated, that Frank Billings Kellogg was in line for world-wide recognition.

There was talk that probably the coveted Nobel peace prize would be awarded him, but this failed to materialize.

But, at the age of seventy-four, this one-time farmer boy, one-time law office janitor, one-time United States senator, one-time ambassador to Great Britain, and one-time secretary of state, achieves about as great an honor as could come to him—a place as a justice on the world court of international justice.

The career of this little white-haired, stoop-shouldered man who literally lifted himself by his bootstraps from farmer boy in Minnesota to the bench of international justice is a remarkable one.

At the age of seventy-four—at a time when most men think of retiring—he is embarking on a new career.

And it is characteristic of the man. He seems determined to continue a life of activity until the very last.

Extremely nervous and his vision completely impaired in one eye, he still retains a remarkable power of concentration. He shoots a good game of golf—can hold his own with the best. And though his club shakes as a reed in the wind when he addresses his ball, it usually goes where he wants it.

Hard work has been the predominant thing in Kellogg's life, and to that, more than anything else, he attributes his success. Even when he went to Rochester for the first time to practice law he had to carry on with manual labor.

Perhaps the man in Washington who knows Kellogg better than any other is Bill Beck, secretary to him while Kellogg was secretary of state. Beck has explored the family records to learn what he could about Kellogg's history. He says this is part of what he found.

"It was in him to be a lawyer. When he got to be a man's size there was no question about what he would do. After the fashion of those times, he entered a lawyer's office to study, colleges being few and beyond his reach.

"There he swept out, tended the fire, looked up references, copied papers, read Blackstone and gradually soaked up a knowledge of the rules of practice. The attorney in whose office he studied gave him instruction as compensation for his services.

"He did the office chores for his tuition and worked out his boarding doing stable chores for a farmer."

Dinner Stories.

"What does your member of congress think of these questions?"

"He don't pay no 'tention to questions," replied Farmer Corntossel. "He's the man that knows what all the answers are, without botherin' 'bout the questions."

"So you are going to be a grand opera singer?"

"Only for a little while," replied the ambitious young vocalist; "just long enough to get a reputation which will enable me to establish a business in educating people in how to reduce weight and become beautiful."

"The boys who use to sell the fuel for the old hay burners, didn't know much about advertising."

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, Oct. 15—Some 500 plastic s geons in New York and at least a dozen vate-home sanitariums attend to the grow demand of those who want noses bobbed, pruned and sagging cheeks ballooned. No are theatrical folk aching for a whirl at lywood. A large number are merely bea mad.

In New York and Hollywood—the plastic gery centers—some 4,000 faces have been constructed since the advent of movies talkies. Boys and girls who fail in screen and have the price usually romp to a fixer to take a flyer in surgical re-vamping.

Strides have been made in plastic surgery a result of war time experimentations, bu remains a dangerous expedient. Surgeons w big names have faced enormous suits for da ages by those disfigured. Many men w long beards and women heavy veils as a p alty for bungling.

Despite the successful operations, the c scientious surgeon admits there is always element of danger. Fannie Bryce's nose was a success and permitted her further continue on the screen. Belle Baker, a pr vaudeville favorite, refused to submit to knife.

Screen luminaries submitting to plastic s gery are Bebe Daniels, Mollie O'Day, Ruth T lor and Vivienne Segal. Among the men "It is Me, Georgie"—and won't some one pl tell him?—Price and Harry Richman. Due mighty sockings, Jack Dempsey and Geor Carpentier had their bridges propped up.

New York society women travel chiefly Paris for such operations. In this isolat they are able to avoid tabloid publicity. H ever, two tragic instances of such experimen abroad are recorded. The ladies have set frozen smiles and have never returned America.

Airplane or Dirigible?

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

A great contest is now on between two ty of aircraft for transoceanic flight. The pr lem is not one of possibility, but one of pra ticality. The list of aviators who have cross the Atlantic in both airplane and dirigible long and imposing. The thing can be don whether by Lindbergh alone carrying less th one and a half tons of gasoline in the Spi of St. Louis or by Coste and Bellonte carryi four and a half tons of fuel in the Questi Mark.

These and the flights of Byrd, Chamb lain, Von Gronau and others set up a ne kind of question mark: Does it pay? C transatlantic flight be placed on a commerc basis? Will transoceanic flight be employ any time soon for regular travel or even f mail transport? Or will it continue to be colossal sporting stunt, greeted with uproario but meaningless, enthusiasm by gaping the sands?

Certainly the flight of Coste and Bellon was a practical achievement from the scie tific point of view. These men were accu tomed to make excessively long non st flights. They hold the record for the longe non-stop flight ever made, from Paris Tsitsihar in Manchuria, only sixty miles sho of 5,000. Every conceivable preparation f their recent East to West transatlantic flig was made, which science could suggest. The plane, long since proved in many a long an difficult flight, had met in advance every tes The plane carried every scientific device value known to aviators. They landed pr cisely at the destination set in advance. Scienc was fully justified in this beautiful, this vi tually perfect flight.

The question which the flight of Coste an Bellonte raises is the inevitable inquiry: Is th airplane superior to the dirigible for lon flights of this sort? Can transoceanic flig become an economic factor in transport by th use of the airplane, without aerodrome, floatin in mid-ocean, or stops on route? Is not spee a vital factor in the situation—a speed whic the dirigible, in its present state, can not at tain?

Perhaps the greatest factor of all, from th economic standpoint, is cost. It is true tha the dirigible may be steady. But it is great retarded in flight by adverse winds. Indeed these may be so heavy as to cause the dirigibl to exceed in speed by but little an ocean liner But the cost factor is an even severer handi cap to the dirigible. This involves a huge outlay, of many millions of dollars, not only for the dirigible itself, but the essential hangar.

The day of huge airplanes is dawning. A huge plane like the DO-X may solve the problem of economic availability. The airplane which can continue to remain aloft and travel at high speed, even after two or three motors have gone dead, is the type of aircraft, it would seem, which will win the long drawn out contest now on.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

THE ROSE IN THE DARK

BY ROY VICKERS

COPYRIGHT, 1930 BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS

Failing in love with a man she hired to see her is the experience of Hallie Ellesmore, beautiful young nurse, when she meets Saxley Grannock, nicknamed "Socks," on a cliff overlooking Long Island Sound. His complicate matters she is already engaged to Lester Knock, Saxely's younger half-brother. Grannock refuses to let Hallie tell him her name until after he undergoes an operation that will either cure him or blind him entirely. He gives her a tiny ivory rose as a love token. Unknown to Grannock, Hallie is hired as his night nurse during the treatment. Lester, coming home drunk, imprisons her in another room, she is unable to call the doctor when Grannock needs him, and her patient goes blind. Disgraced, Hallie breaks with Lester, but he refuses to give her up. Then she meets Grannock by accident. Hearing her voice he recognizes her as the girl on the cliff. She cannot bring herself to reveal that she also the nurse who blinded him. It is arranged that the delusion shall continue until Grannock gets over the shock of his blindness. Lester, planning to force Hallie to marry him, goes to visit Grannock in his room.

CHAPTER 10

Lester's Scheme Succeeds

"COME in, old man," said Grannock.

"You weren't asleep, then?"

"Well, I'm awake now, anyway. . . . Just run and get a breath of fresh air, nurse. I'd like a few minutes with my brother."

"Pain?" asked Lester.

"Not much now. In a way, I'd rather have the pain. It makes my eyes feel—alive. When the pain goes they'll be dead."

Lester put out his hand and touched Grannock's knee.

"I'm sorry, Socks old boy!"

"Just rotten luck, Lester, that's all. No use crabbing. And they say there's a chance—a very slight chance—of recovery . . . . It was the night-nurse who let me down, apparently. But we'd better not talk about her."

"I'm afraid we'll have to," said Lester.

"You aren't telling me that you had anything to do with her desertion last night?"

Lester looked hard at the door. Was little Nurse Casey were outside in the corridor?

"Answer me, Lester! You don't know what it's like to be kept waiting in the dark."

"I'm trying to tell you the truth, now and it's so difficult to do that and still be fair to Miss Ellesmore."

"I thought—I heard them—Lytton or someone—mention your name when there was that commotion about the nurse not being at her post. And later on Lytton told me that the nurse had been found asleep in the drawing-room."

"No, it was I who went to sleep there," Lester corrected him. "I'd had a pretty heavy evening and we went into the drawing-room, she and I, just for the hell of it."

"But you had met her before she came here to nurse me?"

"Oh, yes. Knew her very well. Met her——"

Grannock's suspense and fear would brook no further postponement.

"Lester, can't you give me the one assurance I want without my having to drag it out of you?"

"What's that?"

"That you weren't a party to her abandoning me to—this?" His hand moved to his eyes.

"Listen Socks, I didn't know the first thing about your eye-treatment——"

"Did you persuade her to leave me?"

"She was glad to see me. She——"

"Where was she when you came in?"

Lester thought rapidly.

"In the hall," he said.

Grannock sank back in his chair, sighing deeply. So deep were the shadows round his mouth that Lester thought he had fainted. He half rose to find Nurse Casey.

"No, I'm all right. Don't go away. It is important that we should talk this out, awfully important. It seems to me that I owe you an apology, Lester, for imagining—even for a second—that you might have come to this room and induced that woman to leave me here by myself."

"Apology nothing!" said Lester. "It's I who ought to apologize for forcing a talk like this on you. Only you see, I'm—well, I'm faced with one or two hard facts about this Miss Ellesmore and I've no one to guide me except you. When you're sick I've absolutely no one to turn to."

Lester had never known this appeal to fail.

"I'm not sick, just sort of under the weather, but that'll pass. Don't get the idea into your head that I've turned into an invalid who mustn't be worried. And I'm lucky in my friends, very lucky."

"Lytton is a good scout," agreed Lester cautiously.

"I mind the accident that happened to my eyes almost as much for Lytton's sake as my own." Grannock was deeply moved. "But I have another friend, Lester, a lady who's coming to see me tomorrow afternoon. I'm going to persuade her not to stay in my life because—well, it's obviously not worth offering her, now. But I'd like you to meet her. I'm anxious for you to tell me what she is like. She won't mind."

"You bet. I'll describe her to you. Only I can't do it tomorrow, Socks, as I'll be in town."

"What I'm thinking of is that you'll soon be wanting this place to yourself. I remember before I got back you wrote me that you wanted to marry and settle down. Who is it, old man?"

Lester hesitated.

"Who it is—or was—doesn't matter now. The whole idea is impossible," he said at length.

"But surely——"

"It is impossible for the same reason that it is impossible for me to meet the lady who is coming here tomorrow."

"What reason?"

"Nurse Ellesmore."

"I'm afraid I didn't grasp all that you implied just now," said Grannock. "You say you met this girl in the hall last night. Had she heard your latchkey?"

"S'pose so."

"And not knowing she was on duty, of course, you invited her into the drawing-room . . . I gathered from Lytton that she stayed there until about 4."

"I was asleep by the time she left but I guess Lytton's correct. The point is, Socks, that I feel that I've injured her reputation. I've even taken away her means of getting a living."

"I don't think so." Grannock's voice was harsh with distress. "She's done for as a nurse, I admit, but that's because she left her job of looking after me in this room and stayed away; not because she spent the time in the drawing-room with you."

Lester gracefully abandoned that line of argument.

"Yes, I see. You're right there, of course. Anyway, I have injured her reputation. There are no two ways about that."

"Is she a respectable girl?"

"Absolutely."

"What's she like?"

"Rather lovely. Dark. Dark eyes and hair and dark eyebrows, one tilted a little higher than the other."

"I meant, what is she like in character? Is she—does she come of good people?"

"Yes. She doesn't seem to know anything much about her parents, but she was brought up by a relative who was okay—what's the matter?"

"Nothing. Just a queer coincidence. Go on."

Lester took a deep breath. His lizard-like mind, darting in and out of the whole situation, saw the morass into which he had so nearly floundered.

"She's sensible and level-headed and energetic. Everything I'm not. She has only one weakness and that's—well, she's terribly keen about me, Socks. Was from the first. That was at the bottom of the whole business last night, of course."

"What is your feeling for her?"

"I'm fond enough of her to make her happy."

"Do you consider you owe it to her to ask her to marry you?"

"Yes, I do. Only, I want your opinion."

"You're the only person who can judge." Grannock looked exhausted.

"I suppose I am. But I don't want to marry without your consent," murmured Lester.

"If you feel it's the decent thing to do in the circumstances," said Grannock with unconscious irony 'it is the decent thing. Naturally I—must give my consent."

Lester drew another deep breath. He had got old Socks exactly where he wanted him.

"Thanks a lot, Socks. I knew you'd help me make up my mind. I'll go in town tomorrow, then, and see her."

"She has left Southcliff?"

"So I understand . . . I may have to stay up for a day or two but as soon as anything definite is settled I'll let you know."

To Be Continued.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

—BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Suspicions Are Verified

MY eyes had seen what Lillian's had. Indeed, I think I had seen Mary's first manoeuvre toward us. Ubiquitous, irresponsible Jerry, who already had caused Mr. Colin Cameron much annoyance by his insistence upon cutting in when the talkie star was enjoying a dance with the undeniable belle of the evening, tapped Mr. Cameron on the arm just as Lillian was beginning her comforting little diatribe on Phil Veritzen to me. Mary went to him eagerly, danced a step or two, then said something to him, and he released her until she had come up to us. Then she dismissed him with a charming smile, and a promise.

"I'll remember. Nobody else shall have the next dance."

"What I can salvage of it," Jerry retorted with an engaging grin, and wandered off, to take Marion away from Ronald, while Mary grasped my arm.

"Where is Noel?" she asked.

My vague fears fled at the anxiety in her tone. Her vanity might have been gratified at Mr. Cameron's constant singling of her out from the other girls, her interest might have been intrigued by his patent appreciation of her gift in dancing, but all of her heart, all of her anxiety—her first thoughts—were for her betrothed husband.

Mary Discusses Her Situation

"I sent him up to lie down," I said. "He appeared terribly tired, and I feared he might overdo. Dicky or Harry will fetch him down before supper."

"You're sure it's nothing but fatigue," she said, and added surprisingly, "you don't think he's guessed——"

"Guessed what, Mary?" I countered, all my misgiving returned.

She looked from side to side, almost I thought to myself like an animal trying to escape from a trap, and Lillian mistaking, rose.

"I'll just stroll out to the supper room and see if——" she began, but Mary clutched at her arm.

"Oh! please sit down," she entreated. "I —didn't mean I wanted to see Auntie Madge alone at all. You'll have to know about it, too, so I may as well tell you now. But —do you think we all might go into the supper room."

"I think it would be advisable if you want to talk," Lillian advised her dryly, "for Mr. Cameron and that attentive cadet of yours are ambling in this general direction with Jerry chasing them. So let's go."

We took Mary between us and moved toward the supper room, three discomfited young men stopping abruptly in the middle of the floor and pretending that they had urgent business together.

"It's like this," Mary began when we were safely in the supper room, with only Purnell, too far away to hear us, in evidence. "You know Noel and I can wait until the hot place freezes over before his father will let up on us."

"We'll start from that premise, Mary," I told her, smiling. "Whether it's true or not, we can determine later."

She wheeled on me, her eyes suddenly alight.

Colin Cameron's Offer

"What do you mean?" she demanded 'Whether it's true or not' Has he—" —she stopped abruptly, while I scored myself for raising any hope of hers on so flimsy a foundation at Philip Veritzen's talk with me

"No, he has taken nothing back," I said truthfully, "but go on."

"And you know it's going to be quite some time—quite—some—time—before Noel's able to earn anything much, so it's up to the other half of the sketch to get busy? Are you with me?"

"It depends altogether upon what you 'get busy on,' I told her, and Lillian nodded an assent.

"I thought you'd say that," Mary said, despondently, then threw up her head defiantly. "But this chance isn't like that other time—that cabaret business."

She stopped, averting her eyes, and I knew that the memory of that hideous experience was gripping her. Lillian spoke quickly.

"Never mind anything dead and gone. Tell us what this chance is, something Cameron's proposing, I warrant."

"Yes," Mry returned. "He says, think of it, that there is a part in his next talkie—one they are planning now—for me. I don't have to come on very often, and I don't have to say much, but I have one dance with him, and he says that will be enough to put me across. Did you ever hear anything so glorious?"

"It's splendid, of course, child," I said, trying to make my voice hearty for I knew the surest way of arousing Mary's enthusiasm for the plan would be to oppose her without reason. "What did you tell him?"

"Why—why—I said I'd love to do it but that I'd have to talk it over with my people first."

"And by your people, you meant."

"Why—you and Uncle Dicky, and, her voice trailed off uncomfortably.

"Not Noel?" I asked quietly.

WELL-KNOWN MAN PRAISES DIAPEPSIN FOR STOMACH ILLS

"My work as a commercial photographer keeps me on a strain," says J. Walter Ingraham, 1001 21st St., Des Moines, Iowa.

"So my digestion suffered. I got so I would have severe headaches and a heavy feeling in my stomach after meals. I had gas on the stomach; would belch often, leaving a sour, hot taste in my mouth. Few things agreed with me.

"A friend got me to take some Pape's Diapepsin. I had immediate relief from the first few tablets, so I kept on with it. Now I feel fine; eat anything I want without bad after-effects. I intend to keep on with Pape's Diapepsin until I am sure my trouble won't come back. The tablets are pleasant to chew and sure get results quickly."

Pape's Diapepsin is the best thing yet discovered to end digestive worries, give tone to a disordered stomach, increase appetite, make digestion vigorous and complete. Its success in so many cases where everything else has failed, proves that.

All druggists sell these harmless, pleasant tablets. If you prefer to try them before buying, a letter to Pape's Diapepsin, Wheeling, W. Va., will bring a sample box, FREE.

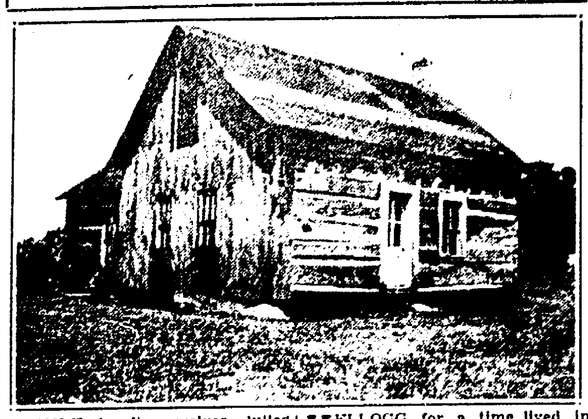
PIONEER CONSTRUCTED LOG CABIN IN 1827



WHILE howling wolves lulled them to sleep at night, the grandparents of S. J. Kellogg of Climax in Morrow county, built the log cabin pictured herewith

The cabin was erected by Patrick Patton in 1827, soon after he came to America from Ireland. The pioneer's body, as well as others in the family, is buried on the Kellogg farm.

KELLOGG for a time lived in the cabin, but after 100 years of occupancy the building now is unused as a dwelling. It is located at Climax, in northwestern Morrow county, near the T. & O. C. railroad.

More than 2,000 feet of black walnut, now a valuable wood, was used in building the cabin, and much of the wood is yet in good condition after a century of exposure to all kinds of weather.

Patton was a weaver by trade and he manufactured a great deal of cloth in the cabin. He raised a family of three girls and two boys.

HOLD THEORY OF MURDER

Mansfield Officials Say Galion Man Could Not Have Killed Self.

Special To The Star

GALION, Oct. 15—The murder theory in the death of Frederick Ferguson, 59, of near Galion, is being held by Richland county officials.

Ferguson, who was found shot to death in his home on the S. M. Smith farm, was buried here yesterday following funeral services at the Volk funeral home.

Mansfield officials said it was a physical impossibility for Ferguson to have killed himself. They pointed out that the shotgun, the weapon that caused Ferguson's death, was found some five feet from the body. His clothing failed to show powder burns and his legs were crossed.

In the meantime the coroner is withholding his verdict pending the establishment of a motive for the shooting.

Ferguson lived alone.

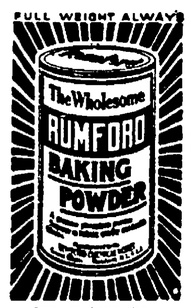
What do you KNOW about BAKING POWDER?



THE CHOICE OF COOKING EXPERTS

You know that it leavens.... but do you know

....that it can add real food value to a baking?

....that there is a scientifically perfect leavening proportion?

....that two-thirds should take place in the mixing, and one-third in the oven heat?

....that this insures complete and perfect expansion of the elements which must be expanded and broken up to become wholesome food for you, and particularly for your children?

Rumford, the all-phosphate baking powder adds real food value to every baking. It leavens invariably in the perfect two-to-one proportion. It leavens perfectly and thoroughly, producing hot breads, cakes and pastries which almost literally "melt in your mouth." When you use Rumford, you use the most wholesome, dependably uniform and economical leavener made.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

WEDNESDAY, and the thunder was rolling all around the sky and when some of it struck good and hard I would open one eye, and Jubilee would open one, and then the lightning would come and we would look at each other, and I would pull the cover a little tighter around my shoulders, and we would both be glad we had each other to sleep with and then we'd go to sleep till the thunder woke us up again. I thought by the middle of the night and him woke up in the morning the rain would be coming down and the world would be about drowned, but when I woke up this morning it hadn't rained at all.

It was coolish but not wet, and my father had helped my grandfather in with the bassburner, and was going to set it up today, and I will have another job all winter, feeding coal to a bassburner. But it won't be long now till I can stop taking the cows to the pasture and I won't be able to go swimming without freezing to death, so I will be able to save a lot of time that way. But when a fella saves a lot of time he don't want to give it to a bassburner.

It was cloudy on the way to the pasture, and when we had went acrosst and over the fence and to the place where we had seen the skunks they were all out walking by the side of the weed patch. It looked like they were people and the weed patch was their front yard. Jubilee looked at them and then looked at me and barked and wagged all the hind end of himself. I never did see a dog want to get into trouble as bad as he did. He finely left me and started for the skunks and danced around and barked at them, and they didn't seem to pay him any mind, but I could see one of the old ones working toardst him, so I grabbed a stick and ran up and threw it at him before he got close enough to broadcast on Jubilee, but when the stick hit him he certainly gave us all he had. The air was so thick we had to push it away to get through it and some of it must of went with us. Because when we got in school the teacher put up a window and said, "You children have an air of having been up to mischief." She sot by the window with her coat on and didn't have the classes go up in front to recite.

When I got home from the pasture my grandfather had found a frog that I had put in one of the parts of his tackle box the last time we went fishing ,and the whole house was open and the tackle box was outside. I was made to go to bed as soon as I had et. I was the only one that could eat, me and Annabelle Lee. Skunks are like women. They like to wear skunk fur

The Stars Say---

For Thursday, Oct. 16

ANOTHER very important and adventurous day is forecast by the ruling position of major planets with reference to lunar transits. There is promise of a sudden and probably radical change in the affairs, attended by a general uprooting of business interests, as well as the environment. Business, new undertakings and the purely personal relations are under this directing, inciting and exciting planetary ray, but all combine to advance and enhance prosperity, progress and happiness.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very eventful year, with the prospect of a radical change affecting the business relations, new projects, and involving domestic, social and affectional affiliations, with far-reaching effect. It is a safe time for renewing contracts and for launching new projects.

A child born on this day may be brilliantly clever, original, inventive and may make signal progress either in invention, research or in a cultural line. It may lean toward high adventure and romance and probably will attain high public place

Famous Home-making Expert
EMILY M. LAUTZ
says:

"IN our Home Economics Service Schools we have made many discoveries—of utmost importance to housewives.

"For example, we have found by actual test that Rinso soaks out dirt and spots with little or no rubbing. It washes clothes bright and snowy without boiling. Naturally that saves the housewife's hands; and the clothes last much longer, too.

"In our home-making demonstrations we show women how safe Rinso is for their finest cottons and linens. We advise them to use it always in their washing machines and tubs. And in our demonstrations we tell them how fine Rinso is for dishes, too—and for all household cleaning."

Home-making Expert of this newspaper invites you to see

Clothes washed snowy . . . . without scrubbing or boiling!

The MARION STAR Expert
MRS. EMILY M. LAUTZ
(of the Home Economics Service Schools) will continue her demonstrations at
MARION STAR AUDITORIUM
Tomorrow and Friday at 2 p. m.

"LIKE magic!" women tell the lecturer of the Home Economics Service Schools when they see, right on the platform, how clothes are washed snow-white and gleaming in hardest water . . . without scrubbing or boiling.

The Home Economics Service Schools' classes are always filled to capacity. So come early to today's demonstration. Note the time and place above.

Here's what you will see

In today's demonstration the Home Economics Service Schools' expert takes a little Rinso and whips it into a tubful of thick, soapy suds. Into these suds she puts an armful of soiled clothes.

While the clothes soak, the action of Rinso is explained. How it loosens dirt — whitens and sterilizes without boiling—saves hands and clothes —does all the hard work of washday without washboard, bar soap, chips, powders or softeners.

When the lecturer or her assistant rinses the clothes, you will be amazed. Snow-white and gleaming, yet they weren't scrubbed one bit!

So compact — one cupful of Rinso gives more suds than two cupfuls of lightweight, puffed-up soaps—even in hardest water. Get the BIG package. You'll like Rinso's soapy suds for dishes, too.

Great in both tub and washer

The makers of 38 leading washing machines recommend Rinso. 32,000 demonstrators use this soap to help them make sales. Come and see why!

Guaranteed by the makers of LUX—Lever Brothers Co., Cambridge, Mass.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

HARDING High football stock dropped several points at the beginning of this week when the team physician announced that Bob Bush, quarterback would not be in condition for the Findlay fracas. It jumped right up again last night when Jack Ling, a husky individual who tips the Toledos at about 188 pounds reported for a tryout with the team. For this week, inasmuch as Ling is inexperienced and may have some difficulty with the signals he may not be as valuable a cog as Bush would have been had the latter been in shape for play. For future games however it may be another story.

Bush has proved one of the most valuable men in the backfield this season in at least two ways. He is one of the best tacklers in the secondary defense and his kicking has been a delight to watch in most cases. He has proved his worth to the team if any member of the squad has. Ling has yet to do that but there is every reason to believe that he will have little difficulty in doing so. In the first practice session yesterday he scattered opposing linemen hither and yon on several occasions and although he seems to have a lot to learn he looks like a valuable addition to the team.

Dick Morgan is again slated to get into action this week. His injured leg is thought to present to be sufficiently better to allow him to get into the Findlay battle. His presence there will do a lot to offset for this week the loss of Bush at the signal calling post. Morgan will be the logical candidate to direct the team in the absence of Bush although it may be that Junior Clay will be given the opportunity to name the plays. Morgan so far this year has played some good football for Harding although he has been handicapped a lot with a sore leg in several of the games. He has however failed to get off to any of the brilliant runs which were expected of him. He seems to be unusually elusive runner and no one will be unduly surprised should he sneak through pretty soon for some sensational jaunts. With Morgan back this week Dick Wright, who has been furnishing most of the classy open field running for Harding should have a capable playmate.

The Star takes this space to correct an error made in a story which appeared on the sports page yesterday concerning the final home game of the Harding football team. The game this Friday with Findlay will not be the last home game for the Presidents. Shelby High's Whippets will visit Marion for a N. C. O. engagement on Nov. 15.

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 15—Northwestern's Big Ten title hopes suffered another setback today with the ineligibility of Harry Kent, first string lineman.

Kent is the third regular lost in two weeks.

OHIO-WOLVES RATED NEARLY EVEN

BUCKEYES TO FLASH POWERFUL RUNNING GAME AGAINST FOE

Michigan To Find Ohio Offense Tougher Than That of Purdue Machine.

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—Whether Michigan is its old robust self will be determined to a large extent at Columbus, Ohio, Saturday where it will test its claws on Ohio State university.

Michigan has not had what Michigan calls a successful football season since 1926, but with a victory over Purdue, the 1929 Big Ten champion, already accomplished, hope is high in Ann Arbor for an unmarred conference slate. If the Wolverine gets by the powerful, but somewhat green Ohio eleven, Michigan supporters may reasonably expect to win the balance of its Big Ten games.

Michigan will have another aim—to prevent Ohio State from running its string of consecutive victories to four one more than it ever has been able to collect in a row. The Buckeyes defeated Michigan in 1919, 1920 and 1921, but the powerful Wolverine team of 1922 put a stop to that string.

Ohio demonstrated it has a powerful running offense when it made 13 first downs against Northwestern last week. The punch was lacking in scoring territory, but Coach Williman has polished off the rough edges this week and Michigan probably will find the Buckeyes tougher than Purdue proved last week. Unless some new piece of ill fortune comes along today.

Northwestern football men and students probably will feel a little disappointed. For the past week the Wildcats have averaged almost a jolt a day, with the loss yesterday through ineligibility of Harry Kent, a fine guard, the latest blow. Coach Dick Hanley has been unable to work his team strenuously because of wholesale vaccinations, and doesn't even have an idea as to who will start against Illinois Saturday.

The Illini are concentrating on a defense against Northwestern's wingback maneuvers, as well as on an elaborate passing game to fire against the Wildcats. Minnesota's defense appears pretty well set and Coach Crisler is rounding out his offence for use against Indiana Saturday. The Hoosiers are more worried about the Gopher offense and are busily working on defensive details.

Purdue's reserve team has shown immense improvement this week and Coach Kizer has indicated he may try the shock troop system against Iowa. The Hawkeyes continue to drill on scoring stuff and yesterdny made a strong showing against the freshmen.

Pennsylvania formations have failed to do much business against Wisconsin's varsity and the Badgers are almost frankly confident of turning back the eastern invaders Saturday. Injuries have hampered Chicago's drills for the Florida contest Saturday. But Coach Stagg is outspoken in his belief that the Maroons will give the powerful 'gators a stiff battle.

WHAT A GAME!

Notre Dame and Northwestern All-Star Teams To Play Thanksgiving.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—Notre Dame and Northwestern football stars of other years will meet on Soldier field Thanksgiving day, in a curtain raiser contest to the Oregon State-West Virginia Shriners' hospital benefit game.

Tim Lowery, Northwestern captain in 1925, has collected together Waldo Fisher, Hank Finkler, Bill Calderwood, Skeets Wieman, Rus Bergherm, Yatz Levison and Heinie Anderson, former Wildcat stars, for the game. Coach Knute Rockne will select an all-Notre Dame eleven.

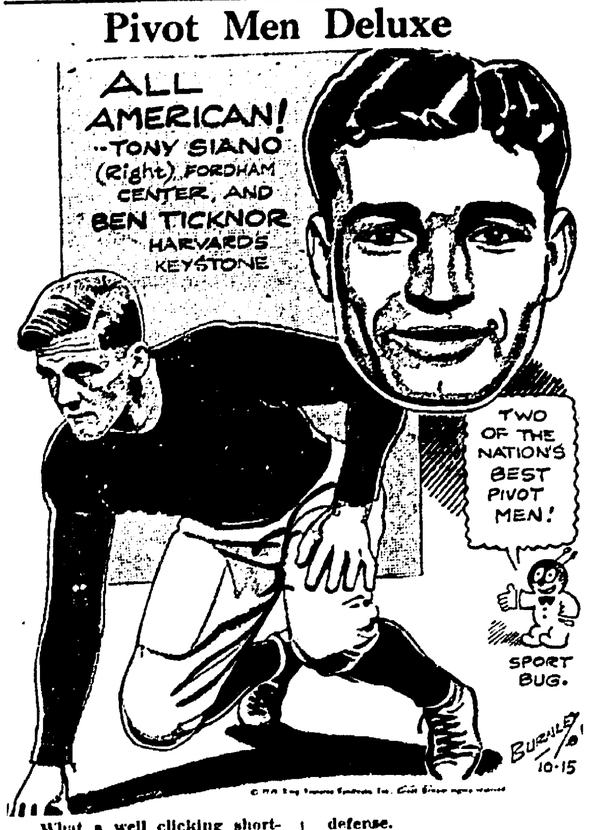
ENTRAIN FOR SOUTH

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—Two dozen Loyola university football players today headed for New Orleans where they clash with their namesake school, Loyola university of the south, Friday night. The loss of Ted Connelly, star quarterback, dimmed the hopes of the Chicago players.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 15—Further work on a revivified offensive was the order for today at Purdue as the Boilermakers prepared for Iowa Saturday.

Howard Kissell, halfback and Roy Horstman, fullback may start Saturday, it was indicated in yesterday's practice.

Pivot Men Deluxe



What a well clicking shortstop and second base combination is to a baseball team, a good roving center is to a football eleven—they keystone of the defense. They are the mainstays in blocking offensive drives in either game.

For many years the center stood in the very middle of the scrimmage line on defense as well as offense. He usually was the heaviest, bulkiest, most lumbering player on the squad, hardly more agile than a bale of hay.

Times and football tactics have changed so that for more than a decade the center plays to the rear of the line of defenses, roving from end to end to plug gaps, intercept passes and otherwise function as the chief bulwark of the secondary defense.

Ideal specimens of roving centers are Tony Siano, Fordham captain and Ben Ticknor captain of the Harvard Crimson forces. Siano weighs but 185 pounds but he is ferociously fast and as hard as nails. He posseses nearly uncanny ability in diagnosing where the next thrust of the enemy will be made. He is now serving his second year as captain of the Fordham Flashes, a significant tribute to that "wow of a wop" from Waltham, Mass.

Ticknor was one of the biggest reasons why little Albie Booth of Yale was so effectively stopped by Harvard last year when the Elis met the Crimson. Harvard stopped Albie completely and defeated Yale to boot.

No Band Greets Matador as He Visits Home Town

By United Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—Sydney Franklin, the one and only American matador, has come home, and the stolid burblhers of Brooklyn, his home town, are still playing on miniature golf courses as if they had never heard of a bull fight.

Franklin's visit to his native shore after three years in the Spanish bull rings was anything but the return of a home-town boy who had made good. Not a band was in sight, and even the boys of the Crescent athletic and pleasure club, who might be expected to be the most ardent hero - worshippers, were at home polishing their putters.

Virtually the only persons awaiting "El Yanqui" when the Manuel Arnus docked were his father and mother and six brothers and sisters.

If they expected to see their son and brother walk down the gangplank in gold brocade and lace, knee breeches and bolero, carrying a scarlet muleta and brandishing a flashing espada, they were sadly disappointed.

Instead, a young man came ashore in a neat brown business suit, wearing a black hat, and carrying the yellow-haired six-year-old daughter of a fellow passenger.

No sooner had he landed than Franklin broke an old cherished illusion.

What! No Toreadors

"There aren't any toreadors, except in operas," he said gravely. "I am not a toreador. I am a fighter of three-year-old bulls—what they call in Spain a novellero.

"I like to fight bulls, but not just to kill them as the people in the United States seem to think I do. It is a fine way of making a living; but I do not plan to introduce bull fighting into the United States because there would be too much competition from miniature golf courses.

"Over here people think bull fighting is like something out of grand opera."

Franklin, having been given the impression by his manager that the whole country was waiting breathlessly to see him, was reticent in discussing the niceties of bull fighting and would not speak at all of the three times he was gored.

"I have recovered from my wounds," he said. "I am in good health and I fought fifty bulls during my career in Spain."

On working days, Franklin said, he ate nothing heavier than scrambled eggs so that he would not run up a high fever if he carelessly allowed a bull to toss him.

Franklin probably will make his first appearance late this month in Madison Square garden, exhibiting three expensive costumes, but he won't fight any bulls.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 15—Grave things today were predicted for Pennsylvania at its reception here Saturday following the Badgers' savage workout yesterday.

Penn offensive plays as demonstrated by two freshmen teams, gained plenty of ground, but the spirit of the varsity in meeting the Penn offensive, buoyed up the spirits of Coach Glenn Thistlewaite

EDITH QUIER BEATEN IN OPENING ROUND OF GOLF TOURNEY

All Other Favorites Win in Women's Tournament; Young Stars Twinkle.

BY PAUL ZIMMERMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 15—With the name of Miss Edith Quier crossed from the list of contenders in first round match play, the women's thirty-fourth national golf tournament moved into the second bracket today.

The freckle-faced Reading, Pa., girl, was beaten in the initial round. The count was 2-up.

All other favorites, including the title defender, Miss Glenna Collett, and two former champions, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd and Miss Marion Hollins, won in conventional fashion. Miss Collett trounced Mrs. Harry Grossman, Los Angeles, 6 and 4. Mrs. Hurd won from Mrs. Russell Fowles, Long Beach, Calif., by the same score. Miss Hollins encountered some difficulty in defeating Mrs. John Taylor, Evanston, Ill., 3 and 2.

Two of the youngest stars in the tourney furnished a brilliant first round match when Miss Helen Hicks, 19, former Canadian champion from Inwood, N. Y., shot subpar golf, to defeat Miss Lucille DeLong, 18-year-old Coronado, Calif entrant, 3 and 1. Matching wood shots with her eastern opponent's irons in many instances, the slight westerner fought a game up-hill battle, for Miss Hicks shot 38 on the par 39 out nine, and with a par five on the unplayed eighteenth on the home round, would have shot a 77, four under standard. An eagle three on the 430-yard thirteenth started Miss DeLong toward defeat.

FIRST TO SIGN

Veteran Left Hander To Again Play for Giant's Club in 1931.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—Clarence Mitchell, veteran southpaw pitcher for the New York Giants, is one of the first major league players to sign a 1931 contract, Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis revealed in his official bulletin today.

It will be the eighteenth season in the majors for Mitchell and his twenty-second straight year in baseball. He will be 40 years old next February.

Walter Roettiger, Giant outfielder, also signed up on a new contract. Other contracts filed in the commissioner's office were those of Alfonzo Lopez, Brooklyn catcher, and Ray Phelps, Brooklyn pitcher.

FORMER BIG THREE TEAMS TO BATTLE IN BIG GAME OF EAST

Harvard Plays Army; Yale Meets Brown; Princeton Clashes with Cornell.

BY COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—It is practically a two-to-one bet the football coaches of the one-time Big Three—Yale, Harvard and Princeton—rolled out of bed today as tired, troubled and sleepy as the fabled cyclops, whose one eye never closed. Harvard meets Army this Saturday, Yale plays Brown and Princeton takes on Cornell in a lineup that should induce insomnia in any mentor.

Of the big trio Harvard is the only team that has not been tested this season and the same is true of the Crimson's opponent, Army. Harvard has been developing slowly but certainly will present a formidable team against the Cadets. Yale, even though defeated by Georgia last week, has a powerful enough squad to call on a super effort from Brown, despite the fact the Providence eleven clawed the Tigers last week-end. Gil Doble possibly may have another of his wonder outfits at Cornell and another dismal afternoon probably awaits the Black and Orange.

At West Point Major Sasse has a fine set of backs to take up the work of the much lamented Cagle and Murrell but just what the new Cadet backfield can do under fire hasn't been demonstrated. The situation is identical with the Crimson backs, who are yet to feel the force of first class competition this season, although they have been under fire in previous years.

Eli Plays Revamped

Following its fall before Georgia, the Eli squad has undergone an almost complete revamping of plays. New backfield plays have been introduced and the chances are that the fallacy of building a one-man outfit was driven home to the Yale coaches by the failure of Albie Booth to be more impressive last Saturday.

Dickens, the star defensive back of the Georgia eleven, revealed after the game that Georgia was able to get an excellent line on almost every play by watching Booth.

"The Yale team would have been harder to stop if they had used the huddle," said Dickens, "for then we would not have been able to watch Booth's eyes."

With Booth out of the lineup, Dickens said, it was much more difficult to forecast the plays.

If Yale wins over Brown, the defeat of the sweetly clicking Rhode Island machine must be charged up to lack of weight. That is the only fault of the Providence eleven.

Cornell gets its chance to line up with Colgate, Syracuse, Carnegie Tech and Brown, eastern elevens that have been tested and remained on top. The scores which Doble's 1930 eleven have run up this season indicate plenty of power in the Big Red machine. In three games against fair opposition Cornell has rolled up a total of 174 points.

Cornell Line Weak

Cornell's line is said to be rather weak because of its lightness and against a fighting team such as Princeton scoring will not be so easy. Bart Viviano, Doble's new Georgia Pfann, is touted as a genuine gridiron sensation and what he can do against more important opposition than he has met to date will be of considerable interest.

Harvard will have a distinct advantage over Army in field generalship. They say that Barry

Here Is A Problem!

What would happen if the name of Marion Streets were changed often? Strangers and residents would be at a loss to know direction.

Suppose numbered streets were changed, out of order every now and then. What would happen?

There is no loss of direction or change in the make-up of The Star Classified Want-Ad Section. Every Want-Ad is classified properly.

This is one reason so many advertisers prefer it.

STOCKS HIGHER ON DULL DAY

Short Selling Carnival Reaches Final Stage; Mill Operations Show Increase.

By International News Service

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—Stocks moved irregularly higher today in a dull market, in which less than a million shares changed hands in the whole forenoon period. The scarcity of stocks in the crowd" was a signal to the that the short-selling carnival had reached its final stage and the stock exchange heads were in earnest in their decision to out certain type of short activities.

On the whole, the market appeared to be over-sold and ready for a rally regardless of immediate developments in industry and trade. The mid-week steel trade reported a three per cent decrease in mill operations, with growing conservatism among the big consumers of steel products.

Despite the second hour by a small influx of selling orders, the industrial favorites were again ready to rally in the early afternoon. At that time Interboro Rapid Transit, at the head of the city list, shares, showed a gain of six points at 34, while Brooklyn Manhattan Transit was up two. United States Steel rallied from 149 above 150. Westinghouse was two points; Loews up 2½; Radio Keith up a point; American Can up two and General Electric up one.

Though the market at the end of the third hour was moving at only a 2,000,000-share gait, a broadening demand was in evidence for most of the active shares, and a "creeping" rally was in progress. The better grade of utility shares participated prominently in this upward move. North American advancing four points to 88¼ and Consolidated Gas again crossing 130.

Rate of Decline in Ohio Unemployment Decreases

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—The rate of decline in Ohio industrial employment, which has been in progress for the past 14 months, is slackening, it was reported today by the bureau of business research at Ohio State university here.

The decline continued last month, the report states, "but at a slightly decreased rate as compared with the three preceding months." The September decline was one per cent from August, in contrast with a five-year average gain of one per cent for the month.

STORM REPORT BOOSTS WHEAT

Prices Gain All Around After Temporary Weak Opening of Market.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—Blizzard advices from Canada and a jump in wheat quotations at Liverpool helped to lift Chicago grain values today after an initial downturn. At the start the wheat market here was temporarily influenced by reports of general rains in northern Argentine and of prospective larger offerings of southern hemisphere wheat in Europe. Opening ¾@1¼ lower, Chicago wheat future delivery contracts soon rose all around to above yesterday's finish. Corn and oats kept pace with wheat, corn starting ½@1 off and subsequently scoring a general advance.

It did not take long for wheat values to reflect news that wintry weather over the Canadian prairies had set in, tending to curtail the movement of wheat from rural sources, and to inflict serious damage on millions of bushels of wheat that had been caught in the fields unthreshed. Advices at hand told of a blizzard at Saskatoon, Swift Current, Medicine Hat and other points. A decided falling-off in the volume of domestic receipts of wheat at spring crop centers northwest was also reported. Minneapolis and Duluth arrivals today totaling but 280 cars, against 483 cars a week ago and 635 at this time last year.

A sudden rise in Liverpool wheat quotations was simultaneous with bullish reports from Canada, but in some quarters was ascribed to buying orders from this side of the Atlantic. Meanwhile Russia was reported to be offering wheat plentifully in Europe at below a world's parity, but the quality of some of the Russian shipments was described as "rather inferior."

Provisions were responsive to upturns in hog values and to official reports showing diminished stocks of lard.

State Supreme Court To Review Lower Ruling

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—The state supreme court today decided to review the ruling of Ashtabula county appellate court in which Tilby Smith was granted a new trial on charges of slaying his wife after being convicted of first degree murder in common pleas court and sentenced to death in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary.

Smith was granted a retrail by the appellate court on grounds that the trial judge had erred in his refusal to hear the case without a jury after Smith had entered a plea of not guilty on the sole ground of insanity.

FORMER BIG THREE TEAMS LEAD IN EAST

Harvard Meets Army; Yale Plays Brown; Princeton Clashes with Cornell.

Wood, the Crimson quarter, has one of the best football backgrounds the east has ever known and that his handling of a team is close to perfection. Wood is rated as far superior to McWilliams, Carver, Bowman and other quarters Major Sasse has employed this season at the point.

It probably would be difficult to select six teams as closely matched at this stage of the season as the Yale, Harvard and Princeton clashes bring together. There really isn't much to choose between them and close scores, with a lucky break the deciding factor, would account for the results nine times out of 10. As it now shapes up, Yale, Harvard and Cornell will likely be the favorites, although Brown, except for lightness, ranks as one of the outstanding eastern elevens.

he was leaning out, counting mile posts. The body is at the C. E. Curtis Co. mortuary on East Center street.

Professor Would Aid College Degree-Chaser

By Brush-Moore Leased Wire

DELAWARE, O., Oct 15—College degree-chasers should be presented with diplomas as soon as they register, in the opinion of Dr. W. J. Warner, associate professor of applied christianity at Ohio Wesleyan university. "Colleges would then consist only of students who take courses in order to get something from them," he explained.

As a further means of providing for the loafers, Dr. Warner suggests that all "snap" courses be marked with a star.
